MAYDAY, MANCHESTER —

From March 15 to 17, 2026 over 100 Literature Evangelists gathered for the annual Field School and Institute, hosted by the Jamaica Union Conference (JAMU) Publishing Ministries Department at the South Coast Resort in Manchester. Centered on the theme, “Transforming Lives One Page At a Time,” the three-day intensive training served as both a practical workshop and a spiritual revival for Literature Evangelists, ranging from level 1 beginners to level 3 seasoned veterans. Sharing his own journey, Dr. Dudley Hosin, Publishing Ministries Director for the Jamaica Union Conference, reflected on how his start as a Literature Evangelist ultimately paved the way for his pastoral ministry. He reminded attendees that their work is not merely a precursor to ministry, but a vital form of it in its own right. “Literature Evangelism was my first calling, which led me into theology. Ellen White says the God-fearing, truth-loving, intelligent Literature Evangelist occupies a position fully equivalent to the gospel minister.” Colporteur Ministry

The Call of the Divine Entrepreneur

The spiritual heart of the event was led by guest presenter, Dr. Super Moiesi, Associate Publishing Ministries Director for the General Conference of Seventh-day Adventists. Drawing from the biblical account of Gideon in Judges 6, Dr. Moiesi challenged the traditional view of talent versus faithfulness. He noted that just as God called Gideon while he was humbly threshing wheat, He continues to seek those who are teachable over those who are merely talented.

“In entrepreneurship, in most cases you go looking for customers, but in Divine entrepreneurship God himself, whom you need, comes looking for you,” Dr. Moiesi shared. “Therefore, the first principle in Divine Entrepreneurship is to be conscious of the presence of God.”

Dr. Moiesi emphasized that transformation is important for service, quoting Ellen G. White to remind the delegates that “a servant of God must be constantly improving, there must be change.” He charged the Literature Evangelists to pursue growth through three distinct channels: personal experience, consistent reading, and daily revelation from God.

A Sacred Business Model

The institute also addressed the practicalities of the ministry, specifically the vital relationship between the evangelists and the IADPA Bookstore. Mrs. Debbie Douglas, National Manager of IADPA Jamaica, provided a sobering yet inspiring look at the “financial machinery” that allows the gospel to spread.

“The books you carry as colporteurs are not ordinary books; they bring life guidance and truth into homes,” Mrs. Douglas expressed.

Highlighting the unique reach of the printed word, she referenced the book Colporteur Ministry, which states that “these workers carry truth to places other forms of ministry may never reach.” However, she was quick to remind the group that the sustainability of this mission relies on integrity and a healthy credit system.

“The system that we work with, which is the credit that we receive, is built on trust, responsibility, and partnership,” Mrs. Douglas explained. “When the money returns, the books return. When the books return, the ministry continues.”

Celebrating Excellence in the Field

The event culminated with an awards ceremony, recognizing those who have excelled in Jamaica Union, in sales, baptism, and as a new colporteur. For the third consecutive year, Mrs. Angella Brown of the West Jamaica Conference secured the title of Jamaica Union’s Champion of Sales and Baptisms.

Following closely in second place was Venus Wallen of the East Jamaica Conference, with both women demonstrating an unwavering and consistent commitment to the mission.

The top honor for Champion Recruit for the Jamaica Union was presented to Carlene Powell from the East Jamaica Conference, and the top Recruit of the year for the WestJamaica Conference went to Tashoy Levy. We acknowledge and commend them for their excellent performance in their first year in the Publishing Ministry.

Reflecting on the impact of the three-day session, Pr. James Sonlin, Publishing Director for the West Jamaica Conference, noted that the training struck a rare balance between professional skills and spiritual depth.

“The training... was excellent. Dr. Moiesi addressed areas that were very often not given enough attention, especially the spirituality of the Colporteur—prioritizing being a missionary and not just the sales,” Sonlin said. “It was a mountain top experience, very spiritual and informative.”

As the Literature Evangelists departed Manchester to return to their respective fields, they did so not merely as salesmen but as Soulsmen equipped to meet a world in need of hope, one page at a time.

NEWS FROM THE INTER-AMERICAN DIVISION

Adventist Youth Share Hope Through Service Across Inter-America on Global Youth Day

Thousands mobilize in outreach, health initiatives, and acts of service across cities and communities on March 21.

March 26, 2026 | Miami, Florida, United States | Libna Stevens, Inter-American Division News

Thousands of Seventh-day Adventist young people across the Inter-American Division (IAD) territory took to their cities and communities to serve and share hope during this year's Global Youth Day (GYD) on March 21, 2026.

The annual initiative, led by the General Conference Youth Ministries Department, encourages young people to step out of their comfort zones and "Be the Sermon."

"There Is Hope for This World in Crisis," reads one of many signs carried by hundreds of young people offering during a two-kilometer march through Guadalajara, Jalisco, Mexico, on Global Youth Day, March 21, 2026. [Photo: Daniel Gallardo/IAD]

From large urban centers to small communities, youth engaged in acts of service that church leaders described as “Communion in Action”—this year’s theme, inspired by Acts 4:31, where early believers prayed together, were filled with the Holy Spirit, and boldly shared God’s message. The theme highlights the power of collective prayer and action as young people unite to serve others and share hope in their communities.

As part of GYD, more than 6 million copies of Words of Hope by Adventist co-founder Ellen G. White were distributed across the territory, complemented by hundreds of community service initiatives, health outreach activities, and personal witnessing efforts.

“We have experienced an extraordinary day,” said Daniel Torreblanca, youth ministries director of the IAD. “From early morning, young people went out into the streets to share the love of Jesus. They have been the hands and feet of Jesus, and many people have been touched by that love filled with hope.”

Reports from across the territory highlighted medical brigades, literature distribution, and hundreds of outreach initiatives aimed at meeting both physical and spiritual needs.

Guadalajara Hosts Major Public Witness Event

Among the many locations, one of the most visible gatherings took place in Guadalajara, Jalisco, Mexico, where more than 800 young people marched through 15 city blocks in the historic center, carrying banners promoting healthy living and hope.

The march culminated at Plaza de la Liberación, where youth set up stations highlighting healthy habits during an event that engaged onlookers and visitors, while missionary books were distributed, drawing the attention of community members and local authorities.

“We welcome you to Guadalajara with open arms,” said María Luisa Vallejo, a government official from the Ministry of the Secretary, who helped facilitate the event. “We commend this noble work of serving the community. Society needs this kind of effort—continue moving forward with strength.”

“We praise God for the millions of books distributed today, and here in Guadalajara—an emblematic place for Mexico—thousands of copies were shared in an area where reaching people with the gospel can be challenging,” said Isaías Espinoza, publishing ministries director for the Inter-American Division. “We are here in this plaza thanking God because many people have come forward to receive the book.”

REFLECTING THE LIGHT

Let Your Light Shine

Easter, the celebration of Christ's resurrection and victory over sin and death, for believers, is a season that offers a uniquely powerful opportunity to spread God's word. The message of Easter is hope, redemption, and new life, and sharing it can transform hearts when they are most open to themes of renewal.

One of the simplest yet most profound ways to share God's word at Easter is through personal testimony. People are drawn to authentic stories and by sharing how the reality of the resurrection has brought hope into your own struggles—whether grief, fear, or failure, you make the gospel tangible.

Spreading God's word at Easter isn't about polished arguments but moreso pointing to the empty tomb with humility and joy. When we share the resurrection, we are sharing the power of God for salvation. And there is no better time than now.

When Jesus rose from the tomb, He shattered darkness forever. For us, being the light of God this Easter means carrying that same resurrecting power into a world still shadowed by fear, loneliness, and despair.

To be God's light is first to receive His light. Before we can shine, we must stand near the source. Let the reality of the resurrection chase away your own doubts, bitterness, or weariness. As Isaiah 60:1 declares, "Arise, shine, for your light has come." You cannot give what you have not first received.

Jesus said in Matthew 5:14, "You are the light of the world." Not someday...now. This Easter, the same Spirit that raised Christ from the dead lives in you. So let your little flame burn brightly. Smile at the cashier. Share your testimony with a friend. Welcome the outsider. In doing so, you become a living bulletin board announcing that death does not win, love is stronger, and the Light has already overcome the darkness.

This Easter, be the light.

BEYOND THE HAZE VAPING, MARIJUANA, AND FINDING TRUE FREEDOM

Vaping, marijuana, and finding true freedom

"Mom, I don't feel very good . . ." Meghan looked pale and feverish.

"Honey, why don't you take a warm bath? It'll help you feel better," Amanda said. Her daughter shuffled to the bathroom, and Amanda heard water gush from the bathtub faucet. She stepped into Meghan's room and began straightening her sheets, smoothing the pillows, and plumping them up to be comfortable for Meghan when she returned.

As Amanda lifted one of the pillows, a small cylindrical object caught her attention. Curiosity piqued, she reached for the tube and looked it over—panic dawning as she realized it was a vape (or electronic cigarette). My child? She thought. Why and how has she gotten into vaping? She knows better . . . plus, she's a minor! How did she get the vape? The alarming discovery led to some very important conversations and helped establish clear boundaries and expectations for their home and family.

Unfortunately, this scenario is not unusual. Everywhere you look—on the street, online, even in schools—vaping and marijuana use are becoming more common, even in children as young as 11 years old. To many, these habits seem harmless, trendy, or even healthy alternatives to cigarettes. But beneath the smoke and vapor, deeper truths remain. Why do people turn to these substances? Why are they harmful not only physically but spiritually? And what can we do when someone we love is caught in this struggle?

Why Do People Vape or Use Marijuana?

People often turn to vaping or marijuana for such reasons as:

Curiosity and Peer Pressure: Friends may introduce it as "cool" or harmless.

Stress and Escape: Many use it to dull emotional pain or anxiety.

Searching for Belonging: Substances can create a sense of community, although it is often false and fleeting.

Misinformation: Ads and social media sometimes promote vaping or cannabis as safe or "natural."

At the root, people are often seeking peace, comfort, or identity—needs that ultimately point to a deeper spiritual hunger only God can really satisfy.

Why Is It Harmful?

Studies show that vaping or using e-cigarettes damages the lungs, weakens immunity, and can even affect brain development in young people.[*] Addiction to nicotine or chemicals can form quickly. Regular marijuana use impairs memory, concentration, and motivation. It can affect mental health, increasing risks of anxiety, paranoia, and depression.

True freedom is found, not in clouds of vapor or marijuana's haze, but in the clear, life-giving presence of Jesus Christ.

These are not "harmless" habits. They can chain the body and mind to cycles of dependence.

Scripture reminds us: "Or do you not know that your body is the temple of the Holy Spirit who is in you, whom you have from God, and you are not your own?" (1 Cor. 6:19). Choosing substances that cloud judgment or damage health dishonors the God who gave us life. These substances can numb the heart to God's voice, dulling spiritual sensitivity. Instead of turning to Christ for peace, people begin to lean on artificial highs. True freedom is found in Christ, not in chemicals that mask pain or momentarily boost pleasure.

What if You Discover a Loved One Using?

Pray First: Ask God for wisdom, compassion, and the right words.

Approach With Love, Not Condemnation: Harsh judgment may push them away. Instead, show concern for both their physical and spiritual health.

Listen: Ask what they are feeling, why they started, and what they hope to find in it.

Encourage Professional and Spiritual Support: Medical help, counseling, and pastoral guidance, if they're open to it, can be powerful together.

Walk Alongside Them: Offer accountability, encouragement, and reminders of God's grace. Change is rarely instant—it requires patience.

As God's people, we are called to shine light into a world clouded by Satan's lies. We need to teach people that their worth is found not in substances but in Christ. We can support ministries that bring hope to those battling addiction. Model healthy, Spirit-filled living that testifies to the joy of a life surrendered to God. Above all, hold on to the promise: "Therefore if the Son makes you free, you shall be free indeed" (John 8:36). True freedom is found, not in clouds of vapor or the haze of marijuana, but in the clear, life-giving presence of Jesus Christ.
